NOTTINGHAMSHIRE'S PEOPLE - ANCESTRAL STORIES FROM THE ARCHIVES

Tracing our ancestors has proved a fascinating challenge for generations. Some researchers have sought evidence to establish a claim to a title, but increasing numbers pursue family history as a hobby, and want to know more about the lives and times of their forebears. Whether they were humble agricultural labourers, local dignitaries or incorrigible criminals, they all have a story to tell.

Until 06/07
CHARLIE PHILLIPS: THE URBAN EYE HIDDEN STORIES IN THE RISE OF MODERN MULTICULTURAL LONDON

Race riots, rogue landlords, street life, interracial relationships, fashion and images of bohemia are captured in Charlie Phillips' latest exhibition Charlie Phillips: The Urban Eye. The striking 'captured moments' in his photographic collection not only form part of a constructed mythology of Notting Hill neighbourhoods in West London during the late 1950s and 1960s but also trace the evolution and transformation of the migrant urban experience into the cosmopolitan cities we inhabit today. Phillips developed the pictures in the bath at home, late at night when his parents had gone to bed. They were only too glad that he was not out on the streets at night and in any danger.

NOW AND NEXT... LIGHT AND LINE : POLLY BINNS AND ANNE MORRELL

Both artists use stitch as structural and mark-making components in the development of their images and ideas. Both share a fascination with the light and texture of landscape: Polly has a long-held interest in the North Norfolk coastline and Anne is inspired by the contrasting landscapes of India and her own back garden in Cheshire.

Until 07/07
SPOTLIGHT: JEWELLERY FROM PEARLS US 1 FIFTH MIRROR

Objects as varied as earrings made from human hair, Italian cameo cut from shell, gold filigree earrings made in India and a modern brooch in vibrant colours made of jewellery, which will be the focus of this Spotlight display. Many of the pieces tell of journeys through life - of love and fidelity, of status and fashion, of travel and souvenirs, of our beliefs and of death and of mourning.

Until 29/09

SPOTLIGHT: EARLY 20TH CENTURY BRITISH PAINTING

A series of displays which highlight significant artists and key themes from the art collections of Nottingham City Museums and Galleries. This Spotlight focuses on paintings by major artists from the first half of the last century, including: Stanley Spencer, Ivon Hitchens, Ben, Winifred and William Nicholson, Victor Pasmore, Walter Sickert, Edward Wadsworth and Mark Gertler.

04/06 (6.30- 8pm)
I KNOW THAT FANTASIES ARE FULL OF LIES (TAKE II) WITH DAVID RAYMOND CONROY

Artist David Raymond Conroy examines how our experiences of images, from online advertising to Hollywood cinema, affect our interactions with objects and each other. How do these experiences become indistinguishable from what we used to imagine was the real world?

OOO SCREENING AND DISCUSSION

Screening: Elizabeth Price User Group Disco and discussion: with Graham Harman, Michelle Kasprzak, Kevin Love and Francis Halsall. What does it mean to imagine that everything exists equally in the world, and that human beings have no more status than atoms or alpacas? Object-oriented ontology ('OOO') puts things (rather than human beings, science or social relations) at the heart of studying what it means to exist. It is a new philosophical movement that has had a decisive influence on the work of both artists and exhibition-makers.
